MATERIAL SAFETY DATA SHEETS AND LAMPS

We believe that under the OSHA Hazards Communication Standard these products are exempted as an "article", and that as such, do not require MSDSs. The original OSHA standard defined an article as something that:

- 1) is formed to a specific shape and design,
- 2) has end use functions dependent upon its shape and design, and
- 3) does not release or otherwise result in an exposure to a hazardous chemical under normal conditions of use.

In February 1994, OSHA amended the Hazard Communication Standard and modified paragraph 3 of the above definition to read:

- 3) does not release more than very small quantities of a hazardous chemical under normal conditions of use.

State and local regulations that we are aware of also contain similar exemptions for such articles.
